- The referee will have the final decision.

19 Temperature

Cold Weather:

Cold weather generally is not seen as a barrier to football, as long as the environmental risks are evaluated, the necessary precautions are undertaken and cold-related injuries are constantly anticipated, identified and managed.

Heat Stress:

- Where possible, matches will be scheduled for cooler times of the day, at a time where less heat stress and exposure is expected. IFCPF will endeavor to reschedule matches where the heat stress is extreme.
- Heat stress will be measured, where possible, by using a wet bulb globe thermometer (WBGT) device consisting of three components:
 - Air temperature – measured by a dry bulb thermometer
 - Solar radiation– measured by a black globe thermometer
 - Humidity – measured by a wet bulb thermometer where air is blown over a wetted wick
- A wet bulb globe reading will be calculated, with the relative components to heat stress reflected in their weighting in the formula used to calculate the reading.

$$\text{Index} = (0.1 \times \text{dry bulb}) + (0.2 \times \text{globe temp}) + (0.7 \times \text{wet bulb temp})$$

Ambient dry temperature	Wet Bulb Globe Temperature	Risk of thermal injury
25–31.9°C (77–89.4°F)	24.0–29.3°C (75–85°F)	Moderate
32–38°C (89.6–100°F)	29.4–32.1°C (85–89.9°F)	High
38°C and above (>100°F)	32.2°C and above (>90°F)	Extreme

Cooling Breaks and Drinks Breaks:

- Extra cooling breaks may be implemented when the WBGT is above 32°C.
- ‘Cooling’ breaks (90 secs – 3 mins) and ‘drinks’ breaks (max 1 min).
- The referee will have the final decision.

20 Altitude

- The risk of developing altitude-related conditions is quite variable between individuals, and depends on many factors. The altitude level accepted as being the threshold for the occurrence of Acute Mountain Sickness (AMS) is 2000m and above.

- When staging an ascent to altitude, it is recommended that one day of acclimatisation should be spent for every 300m to 500m above 2000m.

21 Sanction Fees

Any breach of these rules shall incur a disciplinary fee as decided upon by the Discipline Committee.

- Minor infractions shall incur a fine of no less than 100 EUROS

The Discipline Committee reserve the right to impose sanctions such as point deductions or expulsion from a tournament.

Any appeal should be submitted to the IFCPF Technical Delegate or Local Organising Committee along with the appeal fee of 100 EUROS, in addition to the fine.

Should an appeal be successful, only the fine will be returned unless in the case of an appeal on the basis of mistaken identity as provided for in section 8 of this document.
